CATCHING APES IS NOISY

All the Others Gather About the Trap and the Uproar of Commiseration Is Deafening

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—This is the season when the circus roams abroad over the face of the country, waking the echoes and the late sleepers with its calliope, delighting the small boy with its clowns, and stimulating the interest of the most bored and sophisticated with its caged monsters of the jungle. There is something about the sight of a caged wild animal that is curiously fascinating to civilized humanity. The big cats—the lions, tigers and leopards—are sure to draw the crowd. Strange brutes like the kangaroo and the giraffe may claim attention by virtue of their outlandish architecture, but the great supple carnivora with their glassy staring eyes are sure to be the center of attraction.

Most Hazardous Calling

Where there is demand there is always supply, and so long as the public will pay its quarters and half-dollars to look at a lion or a tiger, so long there will be men to risk lives and fortunes in bringing them lions and tigers to look at. But not one man in a hundred who looks at the brutes behind the bars has any idea of the labor, the expense and the danger involved in capturing and caging them. The trapping of wild animals for exhibition purposes is probably the most hazardous calling and the one most full of difficulties and disappointments practiced today unless it be the training of those same animals after they are caught.

Consider a comparatively simple and routine undertaking in this line such as the capture of lions, one of the standard commodities of the wild-animal trade. The dealer must invest a small fortune in outfitting his expedition for the African bush. He must hire high-priced men who combine the training of naturalists with iron constitutions, the highest degree of courage, the administrative ability necessary to direct and handle a company of hundreds of natives through months of hard work and discouragement, with infinite patience and determination. Good collectors of wild animals are as rare as good artists and as much in demand.

First Make Peace

Before the main expedition starts a small party is generally sent in advance to prepare the natives and guard against possible warfare. These men distribute presents, tell of the approaching expedition, and promise the savages further gifts for co-operation. In spite of this the main body often has trouble with the people of the country.

Arrived on the ground, the trappers locate their quarry and lay out a plan of attack. The mere sport of shooting the African lion, where the hunter bends his efforts toward bringing down the game with smashing blows from the highest-powered rifle at the greatest possible distance is accounted dangerous enough. The dealer, however, must get the animal not only alive, but uninjured. In spite of every precaution a large percentage of the specimens caught die after capture, through the furious struggles that they make for liberty. This represents one of the heaviest items of loss in the business, for many a trader has spent thousands of dollars securing his TOKIO, June 12.—The Japanese government is sending two more battalions of troops to Tien Tsin and Pekin, it was learned today.

ARGENTINE ELECTS RADICAL

BUENOS AYRES, June 12.—Hipolito Irigoyen was chosen president of the Argentine Republic today by the electoral college, being the first radical ever to reach the Argentine presidency. Pelgia Luna was chosen as vice president.

The election of Irigoyen follows the bitterest struggle in the political history of Argentine.

TABLOID CHRONOLOGY OF JUSTICE HUGHES

Born April 11, 1862, in Glens Falls, N. Y., Welsh descent. Son of the Rev. David Charles Hughes and Catherine Connelly Hughes.

1868—Began his education in a public school in Oswego, where his father was preaching before a Baptist congregation. Continued his studies in Newark, N. J

June, 1875—Delivered the salutatory address in the Academy of Music, as a pupil of Grammar School No. 35, New York.

1876—At the age of 14 years entered Madison (now Colgate) university, in Hamilton, N. Y. This is the college from which Elihu Root was graduated.

1878—Entered Brown university in the sophomore class. Nominated as one of the Phi Beta Kappa men of the junior year, and won the Dunn premium for the highest standing in English literature. Also a member of the editorial staff of the Brunonian.

1881—Was graduated from Brown at 19 years of age. Delivered the class oration by virtue of his high standing. Also took one of the two Carpenter premiums assigned to the members of the class "who shall, in the judgment of the faculty, unite in the highest degree the three most important elements of success in life—ability, character and attainment."

1882—Taught Greek and mathematics in Delaware Academy, Delhi, N. Y., studying law at the same time in the office of Judge Gibson. The same year he left the academy to enter Columbia Law School. Was attache of the office of General Setwart L. Woodford, United States district attorney.

1883—Clerk for the law firm of Chamberlain, Carter & Hornblower and Carter, Harnblower & Byrne.

1884—Was graduated from the law school and admitted to the bar. Held a prize fellowship from 1884 to 1887.

1887—Became a member of the firm with which he had connected himself before his graduation. The seniors having withdrawn, the firm became Carter, Hughes & Cravath.

1888—Married the daughter of the late Walter S. Carter, then the senior member of his law firm.

1891—Owing to unsatisfactory health, he withdrew from the practice of law and became a professor of law in Cornell university.

1893-1900—Special lecturer on law in the New York Law school. Also resumed the practice of law in 1893, rejoining his old firm, which then became Carter, Hughes & Dwight.

1905—Appointed counsel to special investigating bodies of the legislature, known as the Stevens Gas and Electric Lighting and the Armstrong Life Insurance committees.

1905—Nominated for mayor of New York by republican convention. Declined.

1906—Designated as one of special counsel of the United States department of justice to conduct an inquiry to ascertain whether prosecution should be begun against the coal mining and carrying railroads under the anti-trust and anti-rebate laws.

1906—Elected governor of New York.

1910—Named by President Taft as justice of the United States supreme court.

CANDIDATE HUGHES IS WILLING TO TALK NOW CONVENTION IS ENDED

NEW YORK, June 12.—"Will Frank Hitchcock be chairman of the national committee? Charles Evans Hughes was asked today by a United Press reporter.

"I can't say anything on that just now," replied the candidate with a smile.

"Will you see Colonel Roosevelt?"

"I can't say anything on that either," said Hughes. "He was in highly good humor and evidently is overjoyed at his return to active politics in the roll of republican presidential nominee.

He wore a gray business suit and a gray tie, appearing well groomed. His beard is gray and sparse. It is not nearly so thick and heavy as it is shown in pictures not taken recently. There is still the distinct part down the center of the chin and a slight tendency toward curling at the edges. But it is not nearly such a predominant factor in his appearance as it was in the old days. It might be said to be only slightly reminiscent of the heavy black brush that becomes famous in the days of the insurance investigation.

"Can you tell us what the thrills are like when a man is drafted by a great party as its candidate for the biggest job on earth?" asked the United Press reporter.

"I can only say that there are certain circumstances under which a matter of duty is extremely 'clear and leaves no grounds for hesitancy," replied Hughes. "There is no question in this situation as to what I should do and in my announcement to the country, I endeavored to make my attitude clear.

"I have not yet received the formal notification of the nomination and I do not know yet just when it will be made."

Half a dozen camera men asked Hughes to pose at the Astor hotel today and he readily agreed. They took about a dozen snaps each and they he said:

"Haven't you got enough, boys?"

Plenty of Smiles

"Not yet, judge—just one more now," replied a photographer. "Please give us another smile."

The request was unnecessary, as Hughes was all smiles today. He posed again and then walked briskly back to his rooms, waving to the newspapermen.

Hughes arrived at 7 a. m. and went directly to the Hotel Astor, where he displayed true campaign form by sending word he would see newspapermen at once.

With his secretary, Lawrence H. Green, Hughes slipped out of Washington shortly after midnight so quietly that only a few persons in the station noted his departure. At his suite at the hotel today it was said his plans for the visit were not complete. It was understood he probably would confer with former Attorney General George Washington.

Big Guard of Police

The New York police department had been tipped regarding Hughes' visit and fifty detectives were assigned to guard the candidate on his arrival at the Twenty-third street station and on the drive to his hotel.

Reports that Hughes and Roosevelt would meet, and that the colonel's full report of the republican candidate would follow were generally discussed as news of the candidate's visit spread.

DR. BECKMAN IS WELCOMED BACK BY HIS FRIENDS

PARTY FACTIONS ABLE TO UNITE ON MR. HUGHES

First Time in Many Years That Progressives and Conservatives Come Together

CONVENTION EMINENTLY FAIR

Old Guard Were on Deck But Younger Men Were in the Saddle at Chicago

BY A. M. BRAYTON

ABOARD CHICAGO SPECIAL TO ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Perhaps nothing better illustrates the strength of the opposition which the republican national convention has presented to the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson than the fact that, for the first time in many years the progressive and conservative republicans of Wisconsin, with practical unamity, are joined in support of Charles Evans Hughes. When these forces can get together there is little chance that there can be anywhere in the party a wide divergence of opinion.

Fairest in Years

From the progressive republican standpoint this agreement is justified. The convention was the fairest held in not less than twenty years. Chairman Harding's rulings were never tainted with factionalism. Conspicuously present, the "old guard" were about as potential as the honorary vice presidents of a woman's guild. They were permitted to sing their swan songs during gaps in the convention's proceedings, but in its practical activities their influence was negligible. Younger men, more in touch with the hopes and aspirations of today's America, less deaf to the voice of the times, shaped the course of events to conform with the unmistakable logic of a situation in which reactionary leadership must have divided the party in a manner fatal to success.

NEIGHBOR SHOOTS ENEMY AND FAMILY HOUNDS ON TRAIL

John Vilas Believed Dying of Wounds in Abdomen Following Quarrel with James Kureca

ALTERCATION OVER CATTLE

Vilas Driving to Mauston for Warrant when Foe Shoots Enemy, Wife and Baby

MAUSTON, Wis., June 12.—(Special)—John Vilas, a farmer, his wife and two months' old child are lying at the home of a neighbor, seriously wounded today, as the result of a quarrel over cattle between Vilas and James Kureca, a neighbor. Vilas is believed to be dying.

A posse with bloodhounds is scouring the woods in this vicinity for trace of Kureca, but up to 10 o'clock this morning had failed to find him.

The shooting occurred Saturday morning, when Vilas and his family were driving to Mauston. Vilas was going for a warrant for Kureca, who, it is alleged, had threatened his life. He was accosted by Kureca, according to his wife's story.

Kureca had a shotgun. After a heated altercation, Kureca, Mrs. Vilas told the authorities, fired four times, almost all of the shot taking effect. Vilas received most of the four charges in his abdomen. Mrs. Vilas was struck in the arm and shoulder, and some of the shot struck the baby.

Kureca ran after the shooting, and Mrs. Vilas drove to a nearby house, where the authorities and physicians were summoned at once. Mauston officials hastened at once to the home of Kureca, who was seen lying on the roof of his barn watching for the posse. When the officials came into sight he dropped off the roof and disappeared into the woods.

It was found that he had changed his clothes and taken what money he could find. The shotgun was found in the hayloft.

Vilas and Kureca quarreled after Kureca found that some of the former's cattle had broken through a fence and wandered into his fields. He is said to have threatened to kill the cattle and Vilas. The feud began, it is said, almost a year ago.

AUSTRIANS ROUTED NEAR CZERNOWITZ CLAIM RUSSIANS

Two Battalions with Generals, Artillery and Ammunition Are Reported Captured

SLAVS CAPTURE DAMODIOVKA

Russians in Full Pursuit of Fleeing Austrians; Cossacks Overrun Country

BERLIN, via Sayville, by Wireless, June 12.—Three hundred prisoners were taken by Austro-German forces who repulsed an attack by Russians northwest of Boczacz, the German war office statement said today.

PETROGRAD, June 12.—The Russians have captured Demodiovka, fifteen miles west of Dubno.

Rout Armies

LONDON, June 12.—The complete rout of the Austrian armies near Czernowitz was announced here today by the Russian embassy.

Two entire divisions, with all their generals, artillery and ammunition, were captured.

The Russians are in full pursuit, the cossacks overrunning the territory at the rear of the fleeing army.

Italians Take Offensive

ROME, June 12—The Italian armies today took the offensive all along the Trentino front, making general advances. This movement, it is understood, is to be a powerful attack, timed simultaneously with the Russian offensive and the reported withdrawal of Austrian troops from Trentino.

Attacks Repulsed

PARIS, June 12.—Repeated and violent German attacks directed at the trenches west of Vaux were completely repulsed, said the French war office statement today.

Artillery Fire Heavy

BERLIN via Salville by Wireless, June 12.—Violent artillery duels on both sides of the Meuse, in the assault upon Verdun, were reported by the German war office today.

On the Russian front, said the statement, German troops reconnoitering south of Krewo advanced into a Russian position, destroyed enemy fortifications and brought back as prisoners 100 Russians and one machine gun.

DEMOCRATIC LEADER ASSUMES OFFENSIVE AND FIRES FIRST GUN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—Norman E. Mack, democratic national committeeman for New York, today attacked the position of Justice Charles E. Hughes in his statement of acceptance and put several questions to the republican nominee.

Here are Mr. Mack's first two questions to Justice Hughes:

"What would you do differently?"

"How would you run things better than President Wilson has done?"

"Mr. Hughes," Mack continues, "says that he stands for an Americanism that knows no ulterior purpose; for a patriotism that is single and complete.' But Mr. Hughes on the other hand was the pet candidate of those who put their nativity before their Americanism."

Then Mr. Mack asks a few more questions:

"Were these elements mistaken when they denounced President Wilson and approved the candidacy of Justice Hughes?"

"Which is his sincere attitude—his silence when these elements were booming him for nomination or his avowal of complete patriotism now that hte nomination has been achieved?"

"What does he imply or change when he says that he stands for 'an Americanism that knows no ulterior purpose?'"

"Is he hitting at President Wilson or at ex-President Roosevelt? What would Mr. Hughes do to maintain the rights of American citizens that the president has not done?

"Would he declare war on Germany or England, or both?"

"Would he intervene in Mexico?"

Having thus "keynoted" on the issues of the campaign, Mr. Mack felt relieved.

THREE RAIDERS DIE IN EFFORT TO BURN RAILRORD TRESTLE

Ranchmen Engage Mexicans Short Time After Ranch Near Laredo Had Been Attacked

WILSON REPLY TO GO THIS WEEK

Administration Refuses the Withdrawal, Declaring De Factos Have Failed in Policing Border

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Secretary of War Baker announced this afternoon he had ordered 1,000 additional coast artillery and the engineer corps at Washington barracks here to proceed at once to the Mexican border for patrol duty.

This action was taken following the receipt of additional news of a disturbing character.

LAREDO, Texas, June 12.—Three Mexican raiders were reported killed and five captured by soldiers and vigilantes following a raiders' attempt to burn the International and Great Northern railroad trestle at Webb, Texas, north of Laredo.

A posse of ranchmen reported engaging the raiders between Webb and Cactus and killing three. There were no American casualties.

Two bandits, one of them a captain, were captured at the bridge, according to reports here. Two others were brought to Laredo. Another raider is reported to be in jail at Webb.

Several truck loads of American regulars and Texas militia left here immediately for the scene of the raid.

Fifteen Mexican bandits early Sunday attacked four employes on the T. A. Coleman ranch at San Samuel, drove them to the brush, and escaped with eighty-three horses. The same party of Mexicans, it is reported, attacked the Johnson and Coledan ranch in the same vicinity Saturday.

Answer This Week

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The president's answer to the latest Carranza note demanding troop withdrawal or "explanation of their presence in view of their present idleness," will go to the first chief this week—before Wilson is renominated at St. Louis.

The note will politely but flatly refuse a withdrawal, or even a rearrangement of American troops. It was practically completed today. It is very long.

Among reasons cited for not withdrawing troops now, the president will emphasize the fact that the murderers of Americans at Santa Ysabel not only have not been punished, but have not been apprehended. It will

A CENT AN HOUR RAISE OFFERED STREET CAR MEN

Although members of the union refused to discuss the situation today, it became known that a counter-proposition of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company was laid before the local at a meeting held Saturday night. Instead of the five-cent raise which the men asked it is understood that the company offered a cent an hour increase.

It is understood that the union appointed a committee to take charge of negotiations with the company, empowering them with full authority to act. Charles Kanter, a member of the executive committee of the union, would neither affirm nor deny the report today.

Mahoney Is Now Second High In Oddfellowship

P. W. Mahoney

Alderman Paul W. Mahoney, La Crosse, now holds the second highest office in Odd Fellowship, having been named as grand representative at the recent state meeting.

Mr. Mahoney's new office, which is a promotion from grand master—itself a high honor—makes him the delegate to the sovereign grand lodge, which includes all of the United States, Canada, Argentine republic, Japan and other countries.

The only office to which Mr. Mahoney could now aspire is that of grand sire.

The first grand lodge meeting which the La Crosse man will be called upon to attend will be at Chattanooga, Tenn., in September.

DEMOCRATIC PLANK MAY DENOUNCE BENCH CANDIDATES

McComb Has Resolution Declaring for Such an Amendment of Constitution

WILL PRAISE WILSON POLICY

Mexican and German Situations Will Be Cited as Diplomatic Victories

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—Chairman William F McCombs of the democratic national committee, announced today that he has prepared a resolution to submit to the platform committee asking for a plank demanding a constitutional amendment that would prevent any federal judge from being elected to any other office.

The resolution is intended to be so broad that even district federal judges would be barred from other offices.

This is Suggested

McCombs' resolution, as at present drafted reads:

"A constitutional amendment should be introduced and passed by congress to provide for making our federal judges ineligible for any other office under the federal government, in order to preserve the integrity of the judiciary."

McCombs explained that his proposition can have no bearing on the nomination of Justice Hughes since the 1916 election will be long past before national action can be taken in the matter. If congress votes to submit the constitutional amendment, it will be a matter of two

DEMOCRATS PLOT TO KIDNAP THE DESERTED MOOSE

Wilson Backers Scheme to Wile the Progressive Four Million to Democrats

TINKER UP PLATFORM TO FIT

Tariff and Mexican Questions Thought the Chief Stumbling Block to Winning the Moose

BY LOWELL MELLETT

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—One of the greatest kidnaping enterprises in history was discovered in St. Louis today. The object of the effort is a four-year-old child—the progressive party. The democratic organization leaders are the would-be kidnapers.

Events in Chicago and Oyster Bay Saturday have changed the color of this week's convention, and instead of being a perfunctory ratification meeting, it may turn out to be a truly thrilling affair. Quiet conferences among democratic committeemen Sunday and Sunday night resulted in a determination on a new program.

Hard After the Chee-ild

Theodore Roosevelt's refusal to run inspired the kidnaping plan. It is the opinion of democratic committeemen that Roosevelt's action spells the death of the progressive party. The committeemen will bend every effort to gather in the four million progressive voters.

Swift developments since Saturday may have a marked bearing on the democratic platform, although one of the men busiest on the kidnaping scheme declared today the platform on which Senator Stone and President Wilson have been working probably will serve the desired purpose.

Various leaders were evasive when asked about it today. National Chairman McCombs, said to be the actual originator, tacitly admitted he was working with others to bring it to a head.

"Somebody must adopt the child" he said, smiling, and he added: "All four million of it."

Asked point-blank if overtures to progressive leaders were proposed, he refused to discuss the matter further. The definite admission was made by one democratic leader that certain progressive leaders were expected in St. Louis in a few days.

Colonel Robert Ewing, Louisiana member of the national committee, on this point, said: "We'd like to have them all here. The treatment received by the loyal progressive workers at Chicago constitutes one of the crimes of American politics, in my opinion. Take fellows like Victor Murdock, for example, who were led out of the republican party by Roosevelt, only to be left high and dry when Roosevelt found there was no possible success in it for him. Murdock's career may be ruined. No one ever questioned Murdock's sincerity and it has been abused shamefully.

"Can't Support Hughes"

"Men like Murdock and William Allen White cannot support Justice Hughes. White has declared since Hughes was nominated that Hughes' milk and water statement on Americanism would prevent progressives supporting him."

One thing done at the Sunday conference, it was learned, was to check off the possible democratic platform against the platform adopted by the progressives last week. The democratic platform, it was agreed would meet the progressives' expressed desire on the following points:

Universal military training.

Regulation of industry and just distribution of its returns.

Re-establishment of an American merchant marine.

National highway development.

A permanent tariff commission.

Removal of artificial causes of the high cost of living.

Prevention of exploitation of men, women and children in industry by extension of the workmen's compensation law and a thorough-going child labor law.

Protection of the wage earner.

A properly regulated system of rural credits to encourage the farmer and give to the landless man an opportunity to acquire land.

These Stumbling Blocks

Stumbling blocks in any get-together program, all democrats agreed would include the following moose planks:

Woman suffrage.

Mexican policy.

Subjects that offer debatable ground, the democrats feel include:

Americanism.

A navy second among those of the world.

Conservation.

The planks named cover the whole progressive platform. There is no chance of reconciling differences over the protective tariff, democratic leaders agreed, but some believe the permanent tariff commission is regarded

Melba's limpid soprano on a new Victor Record

A new Victor Record by Melba is a new chapter in the musical history of the world.

"Sweet as the voice of Nellie Melba" is a musical proverb. The capture of her matchlessly pure notes in a fresh flow of beauty is an event of genuine importance to those who cherish genius.

"Songs My Mother Taught Me," an exquisite gypsy lyric by the Bohemian Dvořák, is worthy a place among the "Melba classics" to be found only on Victor Records.

In this cameo of a song Melba's art shines in all its crystal purity and tenderness and freshness. It is a song which every true appreciator of beauty will surely wish to add to his library of Victor Records.

WHAT LA CROSSE FOLKS AT "U" WRITE ABOUT TO GET THEIR SHEEPSKINS

Eugene T. Edwards of La Crosse, who is a junior in the College of letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin, and Paul S. Egbert, also of La Crosse, who is a senior in the civil engineering course, were recently elected to membership in the Haresfoot club, the dramatic society which presented "Phiddle D. D." this spring at its annual light opera. On June 10 the club held its annual banquet for the old and new members.

Irving M. Tuteur of La Crosse, who is a junior in the course of journalism at the University of Wisconsin, has been playing on the Daily Cardinal base ball team in competition with the teams of the Awk and the Wisconsin Magazine. In these literary base ball games, the Cardinal has been successful.

"Horticultural Camps for Teen-Age Boys" is the subject of the thesis written by Earl W. Brandenburg, of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science June 21. Brandenburg entered Wisconsin as a junior from the La Crosse normal school, and in his two years at Madison has made a prominent place for himself both in dramatics and the work of the Young Men's Christian association. He was a member of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors in his junior year, and in the cabinet this year; he is president of the Edwin Booth dramatic society, and took part in the play presented in January.

"La Crosse's Pavement Problem" is the name of the thesis written by Paul Spier Egbert of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the civil engineering course at the university. As a sophomore Egbert was a member of Skull and Crescent, one of the sophomore societies, and was in the Glee club and manager of the sophomore foot ball team. In his second and fourth years at the university, he took part in the Engineers' Minstrel shows. Egbert is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Miss Irene C. Esch of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the course of home economics, has written her graduating thesis on "A Biography of Textiles". Miss Esch is a member of Pi Beta Phi of Mystic Circle, which is an inter-sorority society, and of the Black Cat.

"The History of Transportation of La Crosse, Wisconsin," is the subject of a thesis by Miss Agnes Hayes of La Crosse, who was graduated from the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin in February. Miss Hayes is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority.

"Financial Conditions Since 1890" is the subject of the thesis by Arthur Euler of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin, June 21.

Miss Charlotte Beverly Harpel of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science in June wrote her thesis on "The Women Characters in Grillparzer's Dramas." Miss Harpel, who entered the university as a junior from La Crosse normal school, is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and the Germanistische Gesellschaft.

"An Investigation of the Effect upon Journals and Bearings Made of Various Materials when run With Deficient Lubrications", is the subject of a thesis by Claude N. Maurer, formerly of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the mechanical engineering course at the university, June 21. Maurer is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; he was secretary of the athletic board in his junior year, played on the foot ball team his first two years, was in the cast of the junior class play, and during his first year was in the university circus.

"A Five Year Paving Program for the City of Madison," is the title of the graduating thesis of William W. Cargill, formerly of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the civil engineering course at the University of Wisconsin, June 21. Cargill is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and was manager of the cross country team during his senior year.

Ambrose E. Murphy of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science at the university June 21, has written a thesis on "Italian Employment Conditions". Murphy entered the university as a sophomore from La Crosse normal school.

Fred H. Reimers of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the Course in Commerce at the university, has taken as his graduating thesis, "The Methods and Effects of Modern Railway Competition". Reimers is a member of Hesperia, one of the debating and literary societies at the university.

"The Villains of Shakespeare's Tragedies" is the subject of the thesis written by Miss Helen G. Smith of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College eof Letters and Science at the university, June 21. Miss Smith, who entered the university as a sophomore from La Crosse normal school, is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and Mystic Circle.

"History of the First United States Bank, 1791-1881," is the subject of the graduating thesis of Edwin Richard Stavrum of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin, June 21. Stavrum, who is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, belongs to Star and Arrow, honorary athletic society, was president of his class in his senior year, and played on the varsity foot ball team his second, third and fourth years. He was captain of the freshman foot ball team.

John Frank Stephl of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the course in chemistry at the university, June 21, wrote his graduating thesis on "The Determination of Ammoniacal Nitrogen in Meat by the Folin Method". Stephl took part in the freshman declamatory contest and also the sophomore semi-public debate.

"Ice Cream Making" is the subject of the graduating thesis written by Albert Weimar of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Agriculture in June. Weimar, who is a member of the Chi Phi fraternity, played foot ball his second, third and fourth year, was secretary of the sophomore class, played in the university band all four years of his college career, and was in the orchestra during his sophomore year.

Miss Agnes Beatrice Schaller of La Crosse, who expects to be graduated from the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin this June, has written a graduating thesis on "Love in the Life and Dramas of Franz Grillparzer". Miss Schaller, who entered the university as a junior from the La Crosse normal school, is a member of the Girls' Glee club, the Choral union, and the Germanistische Gesellschaft.

LARGEST FERRY IN THE WORLD

The largest car ferry in the world transports both freight and passenger cars across Carquinez Straits between Port Costa and Bernicia, Cal. It has recently been put into operation as a part of the Southern Pacific railroad. The ferry boat is 433 feet long. The hull and superstructure are of wood and required over two million feet of lumber. The lumber is held in place by 76 tons of spikes and 16,000 tons of smalled nails. The ferry has a capacity of 36 freight cars and two engines or 24 passenger cars with two engines. It is operated by electric power.

Correct

"My friends," exclaimed the eloquent minister, "were the average man to turn and look himself squarely in the eyes and ask himself what he really needed most, what would be the first reply suggested to his mind?"

"A rubber neck!" shouted the precocious urchin in the rear of the room.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Awful

"The coal supply of the earth is limited," said the scientist. "No one can say how long it will last."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the man in the back row. "And here we've gone and wasted more'n a sack of it heatin' the hall for this lecture."

SHOW YOUR COLORS

The eagle is our national bird. He screams upon our coins, our coat-of-arms and our Fourth of July speaking-platforms. But so he does, with variations, on the coins, arms and platforms of a number of other countries. You'll find if you look at the colored plate in the unabridged that it's a pretty poor nation that hasn't got a more or less recognizable eagle in the armorial menagerie. We sing "My Country Tiz" to an air which scatters patriotic sentiments to English, French, German, Russian and other breezes. In fact, the Star Spangled Banner and the stirring hymn we sing of it are among the few outward symbols which we, as Americans, possess as peculiarly and exclusively American.

For this reason, Wednesday of this week ranks as a really important anniversary in our patriotic calendar. It is the birthday of the flag, the return of the date upon which Betsy Ross completed the banner which now embodies the principles of liberty and justice to a nation of a hundred million people.

It's not a legal holiday. It doesn't need to be. But it deserves to be recognized. Leaders of public opinion have declared that the flag, and what it stands for, are of more vital meaning to the nation now than in many years. If we are to find the conscious appreciation of the flag's meaning and loyalty to its ideals, which big Americans hold to be essential to right Americanism, it will not be along the route of forgetting Flag Day. A general observance of the anniversary is a simple duty which to the individual involves scarcely an effort, but in the aggregate bulks large in inspiration.

A rather belated movement is under way toward a public observance of Flag Day in La Crosse. Its tardiness bespeaks hearty support from the city, individually and as a municipality. No suggestion of indifference will lie against us if Wednesday finds the stars and stripes at every mast-head.

It may prove impossible on such short notice to turn out the militia for a ceremonious guard-mount in the park, as is suggested, but officials, business men and householders can make Flag Day notable simply by running up the colors.

MARCH, BUT DO NOT ENLIST

Japan has a population of 60,000,000 souls. The United States has over 100,000,000.

Japan is about the size of California. Her arable land is a trifle larger than Maryland.

Japan is still an agricultural country. Her manufacturers are a generation behind ours.

The annual value of Japan's farm products is one-twelfth that of the United States, her mineral products one-fortieth, her forestry products one-twentieth and her exports of raw materials and manufactures one-eighth.

The value of Japan's farm lands is one-twentieth that of the United States, and the value of her bank deposits is one-one-hundred-and-fortieth.

Though the Japanese army is somewhat larger than ours, our navy is a third larger than Japan's.

Before the war broke out Japan was the most heavily taxed nation on earth. As a result of the Russo-Japanese war out of every hundred dollars of wealth produced thirty dollars is said to have gone to the government directly or indirectly in the form of taxes. The general poverty of Japan is very great.

It will be evident, therefore, to our preparedness-at-any-cost friends that Japan is amply able to embark on a great war of aggression against us with every expectation of success. To arms, Americans! To arms!—The Independent.

The Independent is unduly alarmed, doncha know! Those Japanese can't whip the United States—really, they can't! No, even though they have spent a century in a preparedness campaign learning jiu jitsu. Nor have we taken seriously the greaser notion that if it weren't for the Texas rangers Villa would make short work of the United States. The only coast defenses we need are a tariff wall, a most obliging fortification always big enough to keep out foreign competition and small enough to let our elephantine infant industries roam at will. That and the "big stick", with a little toothful of diplomacy, will furnish all the "protection" we need.

If for nothing else, 1916 may be called remarkable for the return of the whisker to politics.

The Russian bear has something of the bull about him when he gives out news about his latest offensive.

With only one convention and one candidate, St. Louis won't get nearly so much front page as Chicago.

FORMER LOCAL MAN KILLED

Word was received here Saturday of the accidental death of J. C. McIntyre, formerly a resident of La Crosse, in a logging camp at Wallowa, Oregon.

Mr. McIntyre, according to a brief message, was superintending logging work, when struck by a heavy tree trunk and killed. The body will be taken to Neillsville, Wis., for burial. Mr. McIntyre married Miss Eva Longway, formerly of La Crosse. She is a sister of F. C. Longway, an employe of the Lotus cafe.

Over the Teacups

A woman missionary in China was taking tea with a mandarin's eight wives. The Chinese ladies examined her clothing, her hair, her teeth and so on, but her feet especially amazed them.

"Why," cried one, "you can walk and run as well as a man."

"Yes, to be sure," said the missionary.

"Can you ride a horse and swim, too?"

"Yes."

"Then you must be as strong as a man?"

"I am."

"And you wouldn't let a man beat you—not even if he was your husband—would you?"

"Indeed, I wouldn't," the missionary said.

"Now I understand why the foreign devil never has more than one wife. He is afraid."

An Easy Choice

Bishop Sanford Olmsted said at a dinner party in Denver:

"The charge that the church is governed by mercenary motives is an insiduous one. I think this charge was best answered by the prison chaplain.

"A chaplain was addressing a congregation of prisoners many of whom had given more than one proof that they were profiting by his visits. But there was a certain rough, brutal looking fellow who always scoffed and sneered. And today this fellow, when the chaplain greeted him, said:

"'No, I don't want to shake hands with you, parson. You only preach for money.'"

"'Very good, my friend! have it so,' the chaplain answered. 'I preach for money. You steal for money. Let God choose between us.'"—Denver Post.

Congratulations

One afternoon, just as a Providence clergyman was about to enter the pulpit to conduct the services, a couple from a nearby town presented themselves, making known their anxiety to be married as quickly as possible, says the Pittsburg Post. The clergyman, an extremely methodical man, replied that he could not oblige at that moment, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in making them man and wife. So after some demurring the couple seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished his remarks he cleared his throat and made the following announcement:

"The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of hymn 420, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven.'"

HANNIBAL

Hannibal is a city under the shadow of a great name. Every American town likes to produce a few great men, to indulge in reminiscence about them and the unpromising ways of their youth, and to meet them with bands and banquets when they return to their boyhood haunts; but there is evidently danger in giving the world a man too great. He eclipses the town.

Hannibal might strike a gold-mine or a diamond bed in the hills, become the center of a flourishing aeroplane industry, grow to a city of a hundred thousand people, establish the greatest American colleges and museums, and still, when some one mentioned Hannibal, Missouri, the public would nod its head and say, "Oh yes—Mark Twain's old town."

Luckily, while Hannibal is pushing and boosting after the manner of all good American cities, it has not yet reached the point where the diligent reader of "Tom Sawyer", and "Huckleberry Finn" can not recognize old landmarks. Even the atmosphere of Hannibal is much the same as it must have been in the days when Sam Clemens set type on his brother's newspaper and firmly resolved that if industry and determination could turn the trick he would some day rise to pinnacles of fame and greatness—he would some day be a Mississippi river pilot. And before very many years he was a pilot, and a good one, too.

The American government nowadays is pursuing a laudable policy in creating national monuments. It has set aside lakes and mountains and glaciers, and will probably set aside the Grand Canyon. There is a spot near Hannibal that might well be added to the list, and that is the famous cave, where Tom Sawyer administered the oath to his fellow bandits, in "Huckleberry Finn" and where he lost himself and his companion "Tom Sawyer". The cave is an excellent cave on its own merits, with underground lakes and bottomless pits and unexplored windings. With the added glamour that our kindly genius has given it, it is worthy of all the respect the American people can give it.

An American Romance

It seemed now that he guessed my pity. His slow smile came again.

"All right. The big fight's done. I'll have to tell her she's lost—just as I always told her. Just like I pleaded with her to compromise the case years ago and take the forty thousand we offered. She could have had it then, but now—well, the company withdrew that when her lawyers fought 'em to a finish. They ransacked all the old records in N'Awlyins and in France, too, I reckon, tryin' to find the old Spanish grants that they said gave it to Prosper's line of the family. Prosper"—his benign eye fell upon Papa's ear sticking out from under the newspaper—"reckon if I wake him up and tell him the news, he'll only just look in his seed catalogue!"

"And you came here—to tell Laure—first?"

"It's only square. I—I—she cain't hate me always—if she sees I'm always square. She'd never been so bitter if it wasn't for the baron—he made her hate me. Why, the old rooster—'ll ship him cross-lots to Kingdom Come this week. I got a bunch of deputies comin' with our new niggers—gunmen, too. They'll hunt Crump and Hogjaw and Doc Fortune off Isle Bonne woods in a week. I'll be too busy."

"I think," I murmured, with a qualm at my deceit: "They're busy also."

He laughed softly. "I reckon. The baron's some boy fo' treasueh! He can have it. But his niggers got to go. Big Jim's bringin' five deputies—gun-toters we picked up and had deputized fo' this. Sheriff said neve' mind de-tails. Only—Laure—" he mused again. "Well, it's got to be done—we're on the job now. I can't stop fo' women." Then the patient pain deepened in the lines of his face: "But she—wondeh what she'd say if she knew that I was the one men called the dreameh?"

"She is awakening," I retorted. He stared at me. Clell was rolling over on his gallerie bench. The boss' eyes were on him as he sat up.

"Redfield—thought I left you at the machine?"

Clell came to him quietly. "It was my fault. I thought there was something going on in the island—something that put her in danger. So I persuaded Doctor Dick to come and try to get in with me, and they stole our boat and marooned us here. It—it was for her," he finished stubbornly but without malice, and it was the longest speech he had addressed to Williams in all the dispiriting months. "You see I don't think she'll harm the machine. She was there—she quite gave her word."

The boss looked wonderingly. "Yes?"

"You see, she'll play right now," went on Clell soberly. "Doctor Dick has sized it up—there's one of us she cares for."

The Texan did not answer. But I put in languidly: "Me—undoubtedly. You see I am the one who has amused her mightily. My dear chaps—you lose."

I said it well. They stared incredulously, but mystified. Then the Texan shook his head: "Sho'—Doctor Dick! I told you long ago"—then he stopped and looked at the younger man patiently: "Well, what's the use? I expaict I've no call fo' women. She'll hate me now—fo' I beat her. Isle Bonnie is ours. The cou't gave us every point—clean."

"You won?"

"Yes—and she'll have to know. The Supreme Cou't ended it fo' her. The French heirs held the real titles. Prosper and his dad—and his granddad before him—they mere all a bunch of squatters. And we got our title confirmed abroad."

Clell was silent. Prosper was stirring his coffee upon the table.

"You heard what I said, Papa?" the Texan continued. "I just dropped around to tell you—you' lawyers will let you know next."

"Ah, dem lawyehs, m'sieu! All-a-time I tell Mademoiselle Laure: "Whaffor dem lawyehs? Le Bon Dieu—He mek dat sun shine, and our leetle isle, she is green and shady, and all-a-time yo' honey bees, mademoiselle, can not yo' hear yo' honey bees? Ah, dat worl'—what is he fo' yo', Laure? Wan green leetle island, he is yo's.'"

We seemed stilled by that gentle voice. Prosper's languid eyes went out to Laure's wilderness. The mirrored day lay in her wondrous lake. The sky was flecked by tiny scales of white rimmed with gold drifting up from the gulf as they might have done to lure her buccaneer ancestors from their lawless trafficking to Isle Bonne's peaceful shore.

"But I tell you," went on Virgil slowly, "that you've lost."

"M'sieu?" Prosper inquired gently still. "How can dat be?"

"The court—"

The descendant of the gentlemen of Carondelet's time shrugged: "All dis of cou'ts—fou'ty years now, m'sieu, have I heard of cou'ts—so long my grandfather's cousin in Bordeaux he been in cou't fo' Isle Bonne. All-a-time I say to Mademoiselle Laure: 'On ou' cool gallerie we sit, mon cheré, and watch the lilies drift; and out in dat worl'—Le Bon Dieu!—talk and talk and talk—dem cou'ts! always it was so—I expect, mebbe, it gon on fo' eveh, but what has it to do with you and me, mon chere, on ou' leetle isle?'"

"But it's ended now." Virgil's voice was low and strong. "Where is she?"

Prosper's old grace inclined him indifferently. He took a pinch of snuff and searched for a cigarette. "Her leetle isle, m'sieu—somewhere she is there. Me—I no go fo' nuttin'. Isle Bonne, m'sieu—it loves her, and every mawnin' it call and call, and every mawnin' Laure she go singin' into her forest."

I heard Clell mutter. He had turned away and was staring at the launch and the figure in it which we could hardly see for the palmettos of the shell beach.

"Messieurs, you shall have the coffee." Papa was moving away to the house door.

"No."

"Ah, yes. One does not come to Isle Bonne, messieurs, and not of our coffee take wan leetle cup. A match to dat charcoal furnace, and we are ready." And in the door he rubbed his slender hands. "To Mademoiselle Laure, m'sieu, you address all dis about cou'ts and lawyehs. Me—I no so much lak dat."

We stood looking from Papa's gallerie. Virgil sighed; his exultance had gone. Somehow the long shades reached from Isle Bonne's plumed oaks to cross his spirit. Then he muttered patiently:

"Laure, she cain't hate me forever."

Clell turned suddenly to him. "If she ever realizes she is beaten, she'll go with the baron—abroad."

Virgil started: "Yes?"

"So they declared. I don't know how—but it—it can't be that way! With that roaring old goat—without money—with nothing but his old sword and his appetite for beer. It would be ridiculous—monstrous! That child of the island woods!"

"She cain't—" the Texan muttered, and stared at Clell. They seemed measuring each other's will and purpose. In the silence I heard Papa shuffling about his bare floor for his coffee things again.

"She caint'," the Texan repeated. "But now—someway, I cain't offer her any money as a compromise—money," he went on again—"that wouldn't do. It's where I made my first mistake—four years ago. I didn't know her then!"

"No. Not if you thought she would be bought off with money."

"Money?" The boss looked at him in wonder that grew to his silent pain. "I ain' doin' this fo' money. She nev' could see." His lean hand motioned to the cypress isle. "But you, Redfield, I thought—" and he was dumb again. Always they thought him the money-grabber, the ditch-digger, no one could get away from that to sweep the far horizons of his vision which he had no language to express. "Well," he added, "I expaict we ought to go now. Only, money—it was the job I saw—the world's work, fightin' back the jungle on one side, and the sea on the other. Sho', would I gone through what I did the last eight years fo' money?" He looked at me with his old pain, and then his smile. "I expaict from the first I loved her." He looked quietly at the younger man. "I expaict I did—in my ove'alls and jumper, fightin' the main ditch through. And she was lookn' fo' dukes and knights—and I expaict you looked mo' like one than any man she'd eve' seen."

The other man was still. "Well, you had your chance. I've kept still and played square. You didn't think it of me, did you?"

"No." He watched Clell again with curious wistfulness. "But you made good. Yes, seh! Damn you—I was just tellin' Mary—out the' in the new boat. She came—she said Doctor Dick sent fo' her. This man's game seemed to bother him some."

Mary! We stared out at the little white cruiser. I had not supposed she would!

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND
BY DAISY DEAN

Marion and Madeline Fairbanks.

The difficulty in telling these twins apart may be imagined when it is realized that in height, weight, color of hair and eyes and even to complexions and mannerisms, they are as one.

Now that they have passed their fifteenth year, the "Thanhouser Twins"—Marion and Madeline Fairbanks—have modestly requested that in forthcoming releases they are desirous of having their names appear in the cast, though not for the purpose of differentiation, having long ago given up hope of ever having people tell them apart.

"We have been known so long as the 'twins' in screen productions," said Marion, speaking for her sister as well as herself, "that now that we have passed our fifteenth birthday we think it best that we be known as Marion and Madeline. It looks much more important, we think, to be listed by onr individual names than it does merely as the 'Fairbanks Twins.'"

Telling these two young ladies apart has long been a difficult matter at the Thanhouser studios. On one occasion, during the staging of a feature, Director Sullivan, perturbed at his inability to pick the right one, hit upon the happy idea of fastening a ribbon to their arms. Marion was assigned a blue one and Madeline a red one. Thereafter, little difficulty so far as identification was concerned, was encountered. The same scheme has been resorted to frequently in the staging of releases in which both young ladies appeared.

There is always something new in filmland. Florence Rose, formerly fashion editor of L'Art de la Mode, has been engaged by J. A. Berst of the Pathe company to conduct a fashion department—pictorial, of course. She will put out a special reel of fashions twice a month. Accompanying these films will be a series of articles written to be published simultaneously with the release of the pictures.

Clara Kimball Young, now in her own company, has already started work on a film play from the Robert W. Chambers novel, "The Common Law."

The Lublin Co. has started to film the Rex Beach novel, "The Barrier", planning to make it a successor to "The Ne'er Do Well."

Deadly Insult

Among the offenders huddled in the dock before a police magistrate was a most respectable looking grocer. He was charged with assault.

"Why did you strike this man?" was the first question the magistrate put to him.

"Well, your honor," said the grocer, "what would you yourself do if you kept a grocery store and a man came in and asked whether he could take a moving picture of your cheese?"—New York Times.

War Ruins Orange Blossom Crop And Milady Must Suffer

PARIS, June 12.—Parisian perfumers are soon to be hard hit; likewise is milady's boudoir.

Riviera advices complain that there is not sufficient labor to gather the orange blossoms, hence milady will soon find the trusty atomizer lacking those favorite and world-known scents a la Francais.

Female labor, which the perfume distillers hoped to enlist, has not been found and it is declared now almost too late to save the situation. In addition, the scent makers are handicapped by lack of water due to the blocking of the Siague canal, especially constructed to supply the distilleries.

The scope of the Riviera perfume industry is shown by the fact that there are 1,600 members of the Orange Flower Growers association, most of whom will suffer heavy financial losses on account of the war, labor and water shortage.

A Virginia court has decided that a poker chip is real money. This will also be true of the Saratoga chip if potatoes continue to rise in price.

Mum's The Word Among The Suffs At St. Louis Meet

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12.—Mum's the word among suffragists here today. Scads of them from everywhere are scooting around getting ready for their silent serenade of the delegates Wednesday noon.

General Florence Updegraff of New York, a long ,narrow woman, in a white shirtwaist and a hurry is directing preparations, marshalling her forces for the silent application.

Aiding and abetting the general is Corporal Alma Sasse of New Brunswick, Mo., who looks very much as though she might be.

How many thousand women will take part in the stand-there-and-stare-at-'em demonstration is not yet known. But the general, who is long on upper lip and short on conversation, vouchsafed the remark that there'll be enough in body to reach from the Jefferson hotel to the Coliseum and enough in spirit to reach from suffrage headquarters to the November election.

Two miles of women, silent for two hours! Think of it.

"Some noiseless aggregation," ventured the reporter.

"Noiseless," ejaculated the general. "Not on your royal male prerogative. Talkless doesn't mean noiseless. Why, our color scheme is a shriek."

"Corporal," she added turning to Corporal Sasse, "bring out a uniform and let it yell for the gentleman."

Yoy! As a riotous demonstration that outfit is louder and more prolonged than a national convention.

It showed that the general effect of women-lined lane will be a Bedlam of yellow hats, umbrellas and sashes, trimmed in American flags on a background of soft spoken white.

Along the line of march will be scattered hundreds of camp stools for those who get tired.

Hurry to St. Louis and watch those stools. It will probably be your first, last and only chance to see a woman voluntarily sit down and shut up.

The women are taking this affair very seriously. Generally speaking, they are being taken seriously. Their showing here, combined with their parade in the rain at Chicago, has caused much favorable comment, even among hard shell politicians of all creeds.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF MORGAN WEDDED TO POLICE COMMISSIONER

STERLINGTON N. Y., July 12.—Society was taken completely by surprise by the news that Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and great-great granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton, is to become the bride of Police Commissioner Arthur Woods. She was a favorite of the fiancier and was at his bedside when he died in Rome on March 31, 1913.

Miss Hamilton and Mr. Woods were married here Saturday Bishop Rhinelander of Philadelphia, an uncle of the bride, officiating.

BOY NEAR DEATH BENEATH HOOFS OF FIRE HORSES

Eight-year-old Jimmie McGraw Knocked Down by Cart Enroute to Barn Blaze

DRIVER'S COOLNESS SAVES LIFE

Homer Van Berg Fails to Stop and Manipulates the Wagon so Wheels Miss Prostrate Form

DAMAGE WILL TOTAL $5,000

While Origin Is Unknown It Is Thought Flames Secured Headway in Big Hayloft

Struck by a plunging fire team, racing down Hager street to the Jenks Ice company's barn fire Saturday afternoon, James Hager, aged 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McGraw, 723 Mill street, was knocked down by the pole to miraculously escape death beneath the hoofs of the horses and the wheels of the several hundred pound truck.

The boy was severely cut about the head and now occupies a cot at the St. Francis hospital. Physicians say his chances for recovery are good.

Driver is Cool

The hose cart from No. 2 station rounded the corner of Hagar street at full gallop and the boy was knocked down before the driver, Homer Van Berg, could "pull up" the team.

If the driver had stopped Jimmie would probably have been trampled to pieces by the animals. Instead, Van Berg used every effort to pass over the boy and avoid him with the wheels.

Warren Smith rushed the boy home where his wounds were temporarily dressed by Dr. Leuck, who ordered him transferred to the hospital.

Fire Mysterious

Fire broke out mysteriously in the stables shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, supposedly in the hay loft, as the blaze was well under way when discovered. It is held possible the fire may have been set by a spark from the pipe or cigaret of an employe. The building was gutted and the roof completely destroyed.

Several horses, in the stable at the time, were taken from the stable, most of the horses of the company being in harness at the time.

NELS C. DAVIDSON DIES VICTIM OF PARALPTIC STROKE

Nels C. Davidson, for nearly fifty years a resident of the north side, and pioneer riverman and carpenter, died at 8:13 Sunday morning. Mr. Davidson suffered a stroke of paralysis Friday morning. He had been ill with heart trouble for some time. Death came at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. B. Haraldson, 1602 Charles street.

Mr. Davidson was born in Norway, December 31, 1844. He came to this country in 1866, settling in Onalaska. A short afterwards, he removed to La Crosse, becoming river foreman for the Robert Moore Lumber company. Later, he entered the employ of Peter Nelson, La Crosse contractor, as a carpenter, working at his trade until two years ago, when he retired.

Surviving are nine children, Mrs. J. C. Blystad, La Crosse; Dell Davidson, La Crosse; Mrs. E. M. Forseth, St. Paul; Mrs. J. B. Haraldson, La Crosse; Albert, Winona; Nilmer, Albert Lea Minn.; Mrs. W. J. Hafner, La Crosse; Joseph, Minneapolis; and Roy, La Crosse.

Mr. Davidson was one of the early members of the Charles Street Lutheran church, and at one time represented the Tenth ward in the common council.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of the daughter at 1602 Charles street, and at 2:30 at the Charles street Lutheran church. Rev. E. O. Vik will officiate. Burial will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A TWICE-TOLD TALE

One of Interest to Our Readers

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a La Crosse woman is confirmed after two years.

Mrs. H. Hermanson, 1125 S. Third St., La Crosse, says: "I had dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak. My back ached intensely. Nothing helped me until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Erhart's Drug Store. I was soon rid of the pain and other kidney ailments. (Statement given October 8th, 1910.)

STILL USES DOAN'S

OVER TWO YEARS LATER, Mrs. Hermanson said: "Whenever any symptoms of kidney trouble appear, I use Doan's Kidney Pills. They soon restore me to good health."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hermanson has twice publicly recommended. -Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CAPITAL PREPARES FOR UNIQUE PARADE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Arrangements were completed today for what is expected to be the most unique preparedness parade of all those held throughout the country on Wednesday.

Charles E. Hughes, ex-supreme court justice and republican presidential nominee, probably will be in line, it was announced today.

President Wilson and at least four members of his cabinet will march at the head of the procession up historic Pennsylvania avenue.

At least 75,000 are expected to be in line.

While there have been 1,000,000 patents issued in this country, most of them, apparently, are for aeroplanes and mouse traps.

"What Do You Want For Commencement?"

The invariable answer is

"A Gem-Set Ring"

Both boys and girls want gem-set rings for their commencement presents. More than ever this year are set rings in demand, for set rings are now the vogue. Wherever you see pretty women, smartly dressed, you'll see that they wear their jewels in rings.

This preference for rings springs from the desire to be well-adorned, which is every woman's right. A ring set with stones adds one more touch of beauty to the most beautiful of hands.

Then, too, a set ring carries more suggestion and sentiment than any other token. It is more personal, closer, more treasured, better loved—for a ring may be ever-present.

Rings, because of their countless associations, are significant of love.

Your sweetheart, your wife, your daughter, your mother, your sister—all know this dainty sentiment. That's why the gift of a set ring from you to her means far more to her than mere intrinsic value.

The most delicate compliment that anyone can pay is in the giving of a gift like this.

Irvine's Rings—always of solid gold—cost $2.50, $3, $4, $5, $10, $12.50, $15 up.

They are set with precious and semi-precious gems of unusual beauty and perfect cut. And every ring is a safe purchase because the stones are guaranteed secure.

If at any time a stone comes out or is broken, we will replace and reset it without any charge whatever.

These rings are designed by leaders in the art and their work is marked by rare distinction.

They are made in appropriate styles for men, women and children.

New style Signet Rings, $2.00, $2.75, $3.50 to $10.00.

MOST DANGEROUS WORK CAPTURE OF ANIMALS FOR ZOO

animals and thousands more in caring for them in transport only to have them die before they can be put on ship-board.

Take Cubs and Adults

There are two methods of capturing lions, having for their objectives respectively the cubs and the full-grown animals. Many dealers account the cubs of any wild animal more desirable merchandise than the mature specimens, because the cub is more likely to live and thrive in captivity. A full-grown lion is likely to pine away and die in confinement even after he is safely delivered in Europe or America, or to live in a continual state of ill-temper and sullen savagery. Nevertheless, many full-grown lions are taken annually, and the finest specimens probably belong to this class, for the beasts seem to attain a more perfect development in the wild state.

The full-grown lion is trapped in a simple box-trap baited with meat or in a pit-fall. The lion is a highly cautious animal, however, and will sometimes sit meditatively in front of the door of a baited trap for hours at a time considering the matter, tantalizing the collector who is watching him through a field-glass, only to think better of it in the end and walk away. The pit-fall is a deep, steep-sided hole carefully roofed with a frail covering through which the brute breaks and falls into the pit below. Such pits are dug with great labor, and while they are placed in spots which the tracks show to be frequented by the animals desired, they often catch nothing.

Trayped Animal Dangerous

Once the animal is caught he flies into a frenzy of fear and rage which often results in his injuring himself fatally. This frenzy is resumed when the men approach to rope and remove him, an operation that is obviously of the greatest danger and delicacy. And once he is trapped, roped and safely caged he must still be carried over miles on miles of desert, or through impenetrable swamps and jungles to the sea. He must be carefully fed en route, and it is a great problem to keep him healthy in his strange and unnatural quarters. To be of any value, a wild animal must be in excellent condition when he is delivered to the circus or zoo. The losses are heavy enough even among healthy animals.

The problems of transportation are not so bad in the case of the hunting cats as in those of some of the bigger creatures. The task of getting a hippopotamus or a rhinoceros or a giraffe through miles of jungle or over leagues of desert can be imagined. It is especially difficult in the case of animals like the former which need large quantities of water, and frequent baths. On account of drawbacks such as these, the capture of cubs instead of mature animals is often more practicable.

Cubs Hard to Get

The taking of lion cubs is even more dangerous than the capture of full grown lions, for a lioness with young is probably the most savage and truculent beast on earth, with the possible exception of a she-bear with a family. The den is carefully marked down, and the hunters approach cautiously to entice the lioness out. Some attempt is occasionally made to take her alive, but it is usually enough of a task to put her out of the way without loss to the would-be captors. Then the cubs are cautiously netted, for they display a surprising strength and savagery at a very early age. They are raised on the milk of goats, a flock of the animals being trailed after the expedition for the purpose.

Tigers and leopards are captured by methods similar to those employed on lions. The commonest way of taking the rhinoceros or the hippopotamus is to frighten away or shoot the mother and capture the young animal. The giraffe nowadays is often taken with the rope. He is an animal of sad and nervous temperament, easily terrified, but comparatively docile after he has become accustomed to new surroundings.

Elephant Hard to Tame

The elephant is probably the most intelligent of the wild kindred. He is caught not only for expedition purposes, but in India for a work animal. The usual method of capture in that country is by means of a drive. A stockade with a single gate is built, tremendously heavy and strong. Then a line of thousands of beaters encloses a large area of jungle and draws in upon the stockade with a wild waving of torches, shouting, and shooting of guns. The terrified elephants crash toward the only dark and quiet side of the circle which leads to the stockade. In their bewilderment, many of them rush through the gate, which is dropped behind them. Getting them out is a wild and dangerous business. After they have quieted down a little, drivers enter the enclosure on tame elephants. Each wild animal is hustled between two tame ones, who seem to understand their duties thoroughly, and in most cases is soon domesticated.

Apes Excitable

The capture of the apes—the baboons, orangs, gorillas and chimpanzees—is one of the most interesting branches of the business. These creatures are highly excitable, and especially in the case of the chimpanzees, display almost human emotions. The animals who escape the trap crowd around their unfortunate brethren chattering frantic advice and commiseration. The apes who are caught bewail their lot and implore assistance. With all of them talking at once, the commotion is frightful. The bigger apes, the baboons and gorillas are exceedingly dangerous to remove from the trap, and many a collector carries the scars of their teeth. It has been found almost impossible to keep gorillas in captivity. All the apes are sensitive and temperamental, and if they are left in loneliness will often pine and die.

In the case of most of them, the company of other apes is what is needed, but the chimpanzee seems to thrive equally well on human society. The intelligence of these animals is almost uncanny. Several of those in the big zoos dress and undress themselves, sleep in a bed under blankets, take their food with knife and fork. Almost without exception, they are devotedly attached to their keepers. In fact the affection that even the most savage animals display for the men in charge of them speaks volumes for the way the animals in our zoos are treated and cared for.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

WICKERSHAM GAVE "HIGHBALL" FOR CHOICE OF HUGHES

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, the United Press learned today, was the man at the Washington end of the Chicago-Washington line of communication who helped make the Hughes nomination at Chicago possible.

Wickersham called on Hughes last week to learn whether the justice would accept should he be nominated on the first few ballots.

Wickersham, it was learned on unquestioned authority, told Justice Hughes his nomination was inevitable, provided he would show the least sigh that he would accept. The justice refused absolutely to give an unequivocal yes. He also refused to say he would turn the nomination down.

But Wickersham, it was declared, "drew the impression" from his talk with Hughes that the latter would accept and make the fight.

Accordingly, he communicated his "impressions" to Frank Hitchcock in Chicago.

APPLY HAY'S HAIR HEALTH TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

It is Harmless. No Dye, But Darkens Gray Hair so Evenly No One Can Tell.

Whenever your hair falls out or takes on that dull, lifeless faded, streaked or gray appearance, simply shampoo hair and scalp a few times with HAY'S HAIR HEALTH Color Restorer. All your gray hair then turns a beautiful dark shade, and entire head of hair becomes evenly dark, wavy, soft, fluffy, abundant thick and charming—just as hair appeared when you were 16 or 18 years old. HAY'S HAIR HEALTH is a ready to use delightful hair color restorer, perfectly harmless, but applied 2 or 3 times a week, besides darkening gray hair, makes scalp healthy and clean. Stops dandruff and falling hair and promotes its growth. Give it a trial. Sold on a money-back guarantee. Only 50c or $1.00 a bottle at all druggists.

VIROQUA COUPLE SURPRISED ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Dustin Is Remembered by Most of Friends and Neighbors

VIROQUA, Wis., June 12.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. Truman Dustin, well known residents of Viroqua, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home here yesterday with a large gathering of friends and neighbors, who came with baskets of eatables, and presented the couple with a purse of gold. The affair was a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Dustin. Many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dustin came from Retreat, their old home.

Mrs. Bromley Dies

The death of Mrs. Reuben Bromley occurred at her home a few miles north of this city Friday evening following closely the death of her infant child, which occurred two days before.

Mrs. Bromley, who was Miss Belle Tobias before her marriage, was well known in this community having been a teacher in Vernon county for several years before her marriage to Mr. Bromley, two years ago, and has always lived in or near Viroqua.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sisters, Misses Nettie and Anne Tobias, and two brothers, Henry and Theodore.

Local and Personal

George B. Fisher, overseer of the Waupun prison farm, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Ira Casperson, and numerous friends in the city. Mr. Fisher is slowly recovering from a four months' illness with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Cora Roulean and son Philip of Westby were guests of the lady's aunt, Mrs. Nicholi Nelson of this city, the latter part of last week. She will leave within a few days for her new home at Great Falls, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Nelson, former residents of Viroqua, but now of Monett, Mo., are the parents of a baby boy, their first born.

Henry Ness of Chicago is a guest of the Ole Tuhus family of this city.

Miss Rose Roman, who has been conducting a kindergarten at Rice Lake, is home for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Roman. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. S. Solisky of Rice Lake.

Herman Wolfgram of Milwaukee came Saturday for a short visit with the Wolfgram families of this city.

Miss Lylah Curtis left Saturday for Roundup, Mont., where she will visit the Banks family and other friends.

Mrs. Harriet Spencer of Mt. Sterling was a guest of the Atwood and Buckley families Friday and Saturday, while enroute to Sparta to visit a brother.

A. U. Curry of Valley was a business caller in the city Friday. Mr. Curry recently lost his large store building by fire but will rebuild in the near future.

O. Hurless of Viola was a guest of relatives and friends in the city Friday and Saturday.

Miss Pauline Thompson has returned home from Gays Mills after closing her year's teaching in the village schools.

Herbert Weavel has purchased the Seth Smith home and after remodeling it will take possession.

Miss Mabel Fortun is home for the summer from her school duties at New Lisbon.

L. L. Anderson of Muscoda visited friends in the city Saturday.

One of the things that is losing its charm of narration is the story of the rich man who spends a week gathering data showing how a man can live on $5 a week.

New Orleans, La.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough, for I know my daughter never would have been so well if she had not taken it. For more than a year she had suffered agonies from irregularity, backache, dizziness, and no appetite, but is now well. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters and you can publish this letter."—Mrs. A. ESTRADA, 129 N. Galvez Street, New Orleans, La.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"My daughter was feeling tired and all run down with no apparent cause. She had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before and knew its value so she again purchased it and she was able to keep to work, her eyes became bright and natural, and her system was built up completely. We generally keep the Vegetable Compound in the house for it is to be relied on."—Mrs. E. J. PURDY, 5131 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

YOU CAN HAVE PINK CHEEKS

What causes the color to fade from pink cheeks and red lips? In a word it is thin blood.

When the fading color in cheeks and lips is accompanied by a loss of brightness in the eyes and an increasing heaviness in the step, the cause is to be sought in the state of the blood.

A hundred causes may contribute to the condition of thin blood that is known as anemia. Overwork, lack of out-door exercise, insufficient rest and sleep, improper diet, these are a few of them. The important thing is to restore the blood to normal, to build it up so that the color will return to cheeks and lips.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the great blood builder and invigorator. They begin at once to increase the red corpuscles in the blood and the new blood carries strength and health to every part of the body. Appetite increases, digestion becomes more perfect, energy and ambition return.

A booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. if you mention this paper. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes, $2.50.

as of more importance by many progressives.

In the light of the fact that the Mexican situation is still undetermined several of the plotters believe the progressives would not make that a vital issue. As for suffrage, they think progressives would not hold out over that especially since the republican promise is identical with the democratic.

AUTO SMASHUP

Severe damage to both machines resulted yesterday afternoon when automobiles driven by John H. Tietz, 912 Logan street, grocer, and Joseph Stroeh, Mormon coulee farmer, collided on Mormon coulee road. Seven persons were in the Tietz machine, but aside from small bruises, no one was injured. Mr. Tietz claims that he was driving on the right side of the road when Stroeh, who was coming in the opposite direction, struck him.

years probably before the states can act on it.

McCombs and Senator Stone discussed platform possibilities until late last night. It was denied that Stone had brought any draft of a platform with him, but it became clear that he had brought a very definite outline of the form it should take in order to please President Wilson.

To Praise Policy

The platform will cite the handling of both the European and Mexican situations by the democratic administration as having preserved peace and at the same time upheld American honor. The submarine negotiations with Germany, culminating in the latter power's pledge to cease her objectionable under-sea warfare, will be cited as a diplomatic victory for President Wilson.

The Mexican situation will be gone into fully from the viewpoint of the administration and the president's course upheld. It will be stated that this government has acted only as a friendly, disinterested power, extending such aid as possible while at the same time recognizing the sivereignty of Mexico. The preparedness plank will cite the recently enacted legislation providing for an increased army and navy and declare for a program of preparedness necessitated by changing conditions among the nations of the world.

ACCIDENT MARS BIG OUTING OF LOCAL GROCERS

While playing ball at the annual outing and picnic of the La Crosse Retail Grocers' at Aehler's Cave Sunday, Albert Newburg, son of Jacob Newburg, Third street grocer, sustained a broken leg.

The accident did much to mar the pleasure of an outing that was a success in every other particular.

Practically every member of the local association attended, most of the party making the trip in automobiles.

Conditions Serious

Conditions in Mexico have become so serious in the past few days the administration is considering formally calling the attention of Carranza to the situation. This was announced at the state department today.

Consular reports, it was explained, have said natives in northern Mexico are showing increased excitement and unrest, and that in some instances Carranza officials have exhibited noticeable indifference to the situation.

TAKE AUTO WHILE FAMILY ATTENDS CHURCH SERVICES

One of the boldest automobile thefts ever recorded here occurred between 9 and 11 o'clock Sunday morning when a new Ford machine, owned by Frank Kindhammer, Smith Coulee farmer, was taken from in front of St. Joseph's Cathedral, corner Sixth and Main streets.

The car had but recently been purchased and Mr. Kindhammer and his family had motored into the city to attend the Sunday morning services. The car, for which the license had been aplied, was parked on Sixth street, near Main.

The theft was discovered when Mr. Kindhammer left the church.

The police were notified and an all day search of the city and surrounding country failed to locate the car.

NEEDHAM HEADS PROHIBITIONISTS

Oliver Needham, Midway, was re-elected chairman of the county committee, as was Henry Stephenson, La Crosse, as secretary-treasurer, at the annual meeting of La Crosse county prohibitionists at Onalaska Saturday.

H. E. Willey, Holmen; A. A. Merrill, Onalaska, and Rev. E. B. Chase, La Crosse were named a committee to further the naming of county candidates, whose final consideration is expected to be taken at the state convention to be held in La Crosse on June 20-21.

WILSON ACCEPTS JUSTICE'S LEAVE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Wilson on Saturday accepted Justice Hughes' resignation as follows:

"Dear Justice Hughes:—I am in receipt of your letter of resignation and feel constrained to yield to your desire. I, therefore, accept your resignation as justice of the supreme court to take effect at once.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "WOODROW WILSON."

The letter was sent to the justice by special messenger.

SUPREME COURT AWARD

Hanna S. Barron, widow of the late Charles H. Barron, was awarded $706 from the estate of the late Edwin R. Barron, through a decision handed down by the Wisconsin supreme court today. The supreme court award is in addition to the sum of $1 377, given her in a recent suit in circuit court here. Mrs. Barron's suit was against George W. PARTY FACTIONS ABLE TO UNITE ON MR. HUGHES of the Roosevelt threat, a platform distastefully progressive to the "old guard" and in considerable measure meeting the demands of the radicals, was adopted. The same influences overrode stalwart schemes for swinging to the reactionary Weeks and compelled the nomination of a man who had dared to be progressive even in New York and whose cold reception of party bossism has made him enemies in the high places of Dollardom.

Whilt nothing official could then be said, it was definitely announced in these letters as early as Wednesday that practically all of the individuals in the La Follette group of delegates were prepared to vote for Justice Hughes, and although Senator La Follette's expressed wish that it be made unanimous lacked three votes of consummation, the point was substantially achieved.

Decided for Hughes

The balloting late Friday was a test of strength in which the full La Follette group of delegates paid their respects to Senator La Follette by voting for him, but at a meeting in the nature of a caucus they had decided by majority vote to go to Hughes on Saturday. Hardly had the individuals' plan to go to Hughes been thus made official, than a telegram arrived from Senator La Follette thanking and releasing the delegates, sugesting Hughes or Borah and declaring his hope that the delegation would vote as a unit.

Thereupon Chairman Walter Houser notified the North Dakota delegation of their release and acquainted Iowa, Minnesota and other midwestern progressive delegations that Wisconsin would vote for the supreme court justice.

* * * *

Many unseeing journalists and politicians are declaring that the events of Chicago's convention week have wiped out the bull moose. Nothing could be further from the truth. As a party the bull moose organization is but the physical and intellectual manifestation of ideas that, running in tides and currents through all parties, are seeking a definite channel. These ideas have not found that channel in the bull moose party, nor will they ever find their true course in any party dominated by a single individual to the perversion of principles and the destruction of proportion and consistency. But they will continue to flow on until somewhere, they shall converge in a broad and powerful stream that shall bear them to the port of practical achievement.

Had Big Influence

Their's was not the least achievement in Chicago last week. As progressives and for the most part republicans they exerted a greater influence upon the platform and nomination of the republican convention than had they remained in the party. They may have been outgeneraled by the republican convention leaders; they may have been tricked and deserted by their own leader, but through them more clearly than through the republican delegates the voice of the people spoke to the republican convention.

* * * *

A number of La Crosse people enjoyed the week-end at the Chicago convention. Among them were Dr. Jens Rosholt, who came to a Rush Medical college banquet and witnessed the nomination of Hughes; Drs. Gundersen, Smedal and Egan, and Attorney Wyatt Graves of Sparta. Dr. Maurer was seen at the Congress hotel; he has quite recovered from his recent severe operation.

Admiral F. M. Symonds of Galesville was the guest of Mr. George H. Gordon and Mr. Peter Yerly at the Sherman house Saturday morning. Having once been stationed in Chicago the admiral is a familiar figure in Chicago club and naval circles and was able to navigate the convention week sea of festivities without chart or compass.

Famous Curfew Tower.

Chertsey, Surrey, can vie with Banbury in curfew memories, though it is only in recent years that the old custom of tolling at sundown has been revived there. The original curfew bell, which hung in Chertsey abbey, tolled for the funeral of Henry VI, murdered in the Tower of London and hurried to Chertsey for burial, "without priest, clerk, torch or taper, singing or saying." The village was also the scene of the legend—first put into story form and dramatized by Albert Smith—which relates how Blanche Herlot, to save the life of her lover Neville, condemned to die at sundown, climbed the curfew tower and held the clapper of the great bell, determined that "curfew shall not ring tonight."—London Chronicle.

MOOSE IN MUDDLE FOLLOWING T. R.'S REFUSAL TO RUN

BY H. L. RENNICK
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, June 12.—"We are in a difficult position; but we are used to fighting."

Governor Hiram Johnson of California summed up the progressive situation that way today in an interview with the United Press prior to his departure for New York to confer with Colonel Roosevelt.

"I am convinced that Colonel Roosevelt was prompted by the highest motives in declining the progressive nomination," Johnson said, "but it leaves us in a hard position. We are used to fighting. We will continue the fight on the Pacific coast.

"Many of our party will support Mr. Hughes if it is the colonel's desire. But they will not do it enthusiastically."

Don't Like "Adoption"

Johnson was the last of the bull moose chieftains remaining in Chicago. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who was at first one of the most radical advocates of ignoring the republicans, said before leaving that he was ready to support Hughes. Others took the same view-point. None of them expressed any desire to accept "adoption" by the democrats.

BAND CONCERT TUESDAY

La Crosse will get its third outdoor musical treat of the season tomorrow night, weather permitting, when the West Salem Military band plays at Riverside park, Albert B. Funke, city bandmaster announced today. The band was engaged for last Wednesday evening, but rain caused postponement of the concert.

MARY PICKFORD AT BIJOU

The Bijou has shown few better Pickford offerings than "The Eternal Grind," an appealing story of every day happenings to millions of workers in the cities. As the eldest of three orphan girls, who spend their days in a shirt factory, Little Mary acts the part of a little mother to her younger sisters and throughout the entire story she is prominent.

The picture is a story of humanity with smiles and tears. The Bijou management does not hesitate to boost it as an exceptional Paramount offering. Big Sunday crowds thronged the Bijou. It will be presented again tonight and Tuesday matinee and evening, with Burton Holmes' Philippine series "The Pasig River," a beautiful water trip out of Manila.

M'CORMICK TAKES SUPERINTENDENCY OF LOCAL SCHOOLS

B. E. McCormick, principal of the La Crosse high school, has accepted the position of superintendence of schools here. Formal announcement of Mr. McCormick's acceptance was given today by William Luening, president of the school board.

Mr. McCormick takes the place of L. P. Benezet, who has held the superintendence for six years and who for three years prior to that held Mr. McCormick's present position, that of high school principalship. Mr. McCormick will take charge of the school work July 1, when Mr. Benezet leaves the city for Evansville, Ind., where he will become superintendent of schools, and a member of the Indiana state board of education.

TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY IN LA CROSSE STORES COOPERATE

With the co-operation of La Crosse women's clubs, the North Side Progressive league and Mayor Arthur A. Bentley, La Crosse is preparing to celebrate Flag day Wednesday. The day will be remembered in most cities and villages in the United States, national patriotic societies making special endeavors this year to make the national day a memorable one.

Merchants have promised to cooperate with backers of the Flag day movement here, and the stars and stripes will be displayed prominently from all store windows.

A unique ceremony will be observed at sunrise Wednesday morning on the roof of the Park store, when Myron Locke, with the assistance of other employes of the store will raise the National colors. At the same time a cannon salute will be given. The same ceremonies will be gone through at sunset Wednesday evening.

We Believe the Maxwell is Greatest Motor Car Value on the Market

BUT our opinion would not be of any particular importance to you if it did not coincide with the facts. We only want you to look the market over carefully. Then we absolutely know that you will agree with us.

In the first place there is the remarkable Maxwell engine. No four cylinder motor of its size has more "pep" or go to it regardless of the price of the car it drives. It will climb hills on high gear in a manner that will astonish you. It is quiet and works day in and day out with a sound, business-like hum that is good to hear.

Any engineer will compliment the design of the chassis. And those who are not engineers cannot fail to note its simplicity and staunch construction. As for what it is made of, we can truthfully say that better material cannot be bought.

The operation of the car is simplicity itself—the brakes are powerful—the springs are long and flexible—the axles are strong and the steering apparatus, like the rest of the chassis, is built to stand the most severe service the car may ever have to face, wherever or however it is used.

Then if you consider looks important, and most people do, you will not find a more attractive car than the Maxwell at anywhere near the price.

And it comes to you fully equipped with all the attachments you will ever want or need; electric starter and lights, demountable rims, one man top, self-ventilating, rain-vision windshield, etc. All for $655 (five passenger touring car) or $635 (two passenger roadster).

We know you can't beat it.

RIVAL VISITORS CALL ON COLONEL FROM TWO PARTIES

Moose Delegation Sees Him Today to Persuade Him to Take the Nomination

G. O. P. LEADERS ASK SUPPORT

Republicans Pilgrimage to Oyster Bay to Line T. R. Up Behind Hughes

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 12.—Sagamore Hill is politically off the map today by announcement of Colonel Roosevelt.

For the first time since he entered politics Colonel Roosevelt refuses to meet newspapermen "officially." They are welcome as friends.

But before the day is over, Sagamore Hill is going to be very decidedly back on the political map. Two pilgrimages to the Sagamore Hill today may result in an important action by T. R.

One party of progressives planned to visit T. R. in an attempt to prevail upon him to accept the nomination offered him, either by cajolery or by threats of a party "bolt" to the democrats.

Another party of pilgrims from the G. O. P., including George W. Wickersham, George B. Cortelyou and William Loeb, Jr., will advance on Sagamore Hill waving the olive branch and talking peace in an effort to win the colonel over to the support of Hughes.

Moose to Plead

NEW YORK, June 12.—Still full of fight, the Roosevelt radicals of the progressive party will storm Oyster Bay today in an effort to convince the colonel that he should accept the progressive nomination for president.

Delegates, returned from Chicago, today said that it was still the concensus of opinion of progressives that T. R. should accept the nomination of the party he fathered and that the party positively would not endorse Hughes.

Chairman John J. O'Connell, commissioner of Charities Kingsbury, William Halpin, Michael Schlapp, Stanley Isaac, Justice William Ransom and Solomon Sufrin make up the committee which waits on T. R. today for his final answer to his party.

WESLEYAN MALE CHORUS GIVES SPARTA RECITAL

Well Known Musical Organization of La Crosse in Benefit for Militia; Soloists an Attraction

SPARTA, Wis., June 12.—(Special.)—Sparta music lovers are scheduled to enjoy a rare treat and at the some time assist the local militia, when the Wesleyan Male chorus of La Crosse appears at the Armory at 8 o'clock Friday evening, June 16, under the auspices of Company L, Wisconsin National guard.

The Wesleyan Male chorus is a well known organization and has been under the constant direction of Professor James R. Kerr for the past five years, with weekly rehearsals and at each of its annual concerts given in its home city, is greeted by a packed house.

Special features are to be offered in the Sparta concert, which are worthy of special mention. Miss Anna Hickisch will be the special soloist. Miss Hickisch for years appeared in some of the most famous concert halls of Europe. John S. Otten, reader, has appeared in long engagecents on American Lyceum and Chautauqua circuits. Mr. Darwin Hoffschildt, accompanist, is one of the best known musicians in Western Wisconsin, and Spartans are already well acquainted with Professor Kerr, director of the organization.

A particularly attractive program has been arranged for the Sparta concert, as follows:

(a) Hail Us Ye Free (from Ernani) ..... Verdi-Emerson
(b) Sea and Heart (solo Mr. Thiel) ..... Oelschlegel
(c) The Water Mill .... J. C. Macy

Obedience and Team Work.

Only in a few American homes is prompt obedience required. Only to a limited degree is the habit of prompt obedience cultivated in the school. The boys have done something to cultivate the spirit of team work by their voluntary athletics; but only a minority get this training. Organized industry does something to compel team work, but not much to inspire it. Corporations and labor unions do something to develop it, but it is team work for a class, not for the community. It is not easy to conceive of anything which would do more to develop these two needed virtues—prompt obedience and team work—than universal military service. General Wood tells us that in this country the murder rate is 124 per million; in Switzerland it is 12 per million. What is the cause of this difference? One cause is the American vice of self will. What is the remedy for this defect? One valuable remedy would be the soldier's habit of respect for authority and of regard for the comrade at his side.—Outlook.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

UPHOLD DEFEAT OF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The defeat of the Sprague gerrymander bill in Ohio by a referendum vote was declared legal today by the United States supreme court. The bill was passed by the legislature but defeated at a referendum.

There is a college professor in Connecticut who is living on 26 cents a week. Well, a whole lot of magazine poets are doing that and are not bragging about it, either.

A physician states that large hats are injurious to the health of women. And he might add, to the bank accounts of men.

New Track Captain

Harry Grausnick of Winona was unanimously elected track captain at the normal school this morning, when the state champions came together to have their picture taken with all the cups and banners. Grausnick was the individual star of the conference meet held in this city and a strong cog in the team which was victorious over the team from Stout institute. This is his first captaincy at the local school.

Normal Baccalaureate

Rev. E. C. Dixon of the First M. E. church delivered the baccalaureate address to the normal graduates yesterday afternoon. Practically every one of the large class of 1916 turned out in the afternoon to hear the sermon on "The Light and the Fire," which was based on the words, "Ye are the Light of the World."

The afternoon's program was concluded by the rendition of "America" by the graduating class.

HITCHCOCK DOPED FOR CHAIRMAN OF G. O. P. COMMITTEE

CHICAGO, June 12.—Frank Hitchcock, who engineered the Hughes boom in Chicago, took the same stand about the national committee chairmanship today that Hughes took about the presidency.

"I am not a candidate," he said today.

Political experts figured, however, that Hitchcock was almost certain of getting the job.

DIES MYSTERIOUSLY

CHICAGO, June 12.—A coroner's jury was to investigate today the death of John V. Steger, piano manufacturer and self-made multi-millionaire. Steger's body was found in the reservoir of the piano factory in the Illinois town that bears his name. Steger had gone to the reservoir to feed the gold fishes. He is believed to have fallen into the water when stricken by heart disease.

A man's ability should be rated by what he finishes and not by what he begins.

A Little Blossom To Delight the Home

When it is known that in the near future the home is to be blessed with a new arrival the first thought should be "Mother's Friend." This is an external remedy gently applied over the stomach muscles. It makes them firm and pliant, they expand naturally without undue strain. It removes from the nerves those influences which are responsible for much of the pain incident to the period of expectancy. It is for this reason that much of the distress such as morning sickness is avoided. All prospective fathers should see to it that the expectant mother is provided with a bottle of "Mother's Friend."

The directions are simple. Get it at any drug store. It is applied by the expectant mother herself, it penetrates deeply and affords quick and splendid relief in a most gratifying manner and reflects a physical betterment to the nervous disposition of the baby. Don't fail to get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today and then write Bradfield Regulator Co., 413 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a pretty little book brimful of information for expectant mothers. It is a delight to read it.

ENGLISH PURE AND UNDEFILED

BY HOPE DARING

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"You know she's a widow woman and lives——"

"Oh Jasper!"

"Eh! What is it?" Jasper Dunning asked, looking into the face of the girl who shared the road wagon seat with him.

Margaret caught her breath. It might hurt him, but what he had just said hurt her. Would it do any good? She looked reflectively along the country road that stretched away in front of them. Over it the maples, brave in their green livery of early summer, threw long, cool shadows. Her silence was so long continued that Jasper repeated, this time a little sharply:

"What is it?"

"Did you ever hear of a widow who was not a woman?"

"What an idea! I don't git you."

"Oh, please do not say 'git.' And the other is such a colloquialism. If you say a woman is a widow, that's enough."

Jasper drew up on the lines until his spirited bays reared. When he had quieted them he asked, "What is a colloqui—' I didn't git—no, get it."

Briefly, Margaret explained. "To use good English, Jasper, means so much! It's the mark of a gentleman. Strangers judge us by our language."

"See here, Margaret. Before you went away to college I talked goon 'nough for you," he blurted.

The girl's eyes met his; she was conscientiously honest, even with herself. "It always annoyed me a little, but I had heard people talk in that way all my life. Not until I went to Girton did I come to see just what such things mean," she said.

"I wish you'd never gone. You see, I didn't so much mind waitin', 'cause I planned to fix up the farm so it'd be a good 'nough home for you. But them two years spiled you. I wish you'd never gone."

The reiteration of the wish made Margaret forget the grammatical lapses that had preceded it. Never seen Girton! Never come in contact with that scholarly, progressive phase of life which she had determined should dominate her future! Even if she did teach a primary grade in a village school, Margaret had resolved that not only her own life but all lives that touched hers, should be sweeter and stronger because of those two years at Girton!

The silence endured so long that Jasper thought the victory was his. With a superior smile he said, "It don't matter."

Why could he not have said "doesn't?" Margaret's brown eyes flashed. "It does matter to me and to all who care for really good things," she declared. "And if you cared for me, Jasper, you'd try to please me, especially when I'm wholly in the right. Why, I would be shamed to have Prof. Larned hear you talk—sometimes."

That last word was added almost desperately when she saw the color fade from Jasper's face. Before he could reply, they were at the gate of the village home where Margaret boarded. A half dozen young men and girls who were sitting on the veranda came trooping down the walk to meet them, laughing, talking, making plans for the evening.

Those plans were so well carried out that Jasper had no opportunity for further words with his betrothed. Even when, several hours later, he bade her good night, Alice Marr stood only a few feet away, waiting for Margaret to join her.

"Shamed to have that professor hear me talk!" Jasper said to himself as he rode home under the calm stars. "I 'spose I could do a little better, but I hain't agoin' to stand it to be nagged all the time."

At that same hour, Margaret was crying softly, her head on the windowsill. To go through life blushing for a husband's mistakes, ashamed to have people hear him talk—could she do it? Could she hold fast to her own ideals if she were Jasper's wife? In the years to come, if children should be theirs, how could she teach them aright if her teaching plainly put their father in the wrong?

For three days, she pondered those questions. Then she did two things—she promised the school board that she would teach another year and she wrote a note which ran:

"Dear Jasper:

"There has been no change in my feelings. I love you, but I cannot be happy with a man who disregards the things I hold essential. Therefore I must take back my promise to be your wife.

"Sincerely yours,

"MARGARET."

Jasper made no reply to the note, no effort to see Margaret. A month went by. The cessation of his visits proved to their friends that the engagement had been broken. He began to hear rumors of the many letters she was receiving from one of the Girton college professors. When on overtaking Jane Harris, plodding along in the rain, Jasper took her home, the story was repeated to Margaret so many times that she became convinced that it was a matter of daily occurrence.

The Grange picnic came early in July. For years Jasper had taken Margaret.

"I'll not go this time," he decided. "Everybody would look and smile, even if they did not say anything. I'll work in the harvest field."

He found his teask wearisome. Recollections of past joys crowded on him. Suddenly he strode off, resolving to go to the farm wood lot. It was there, in the shadow of a grove of birches that grew on the bank of a stream, that he had told Margaret of his love. There had been little need of words; his face and his acts had proclaimed his devotion, yet the telling and her response had been wondrously sweet. Since that day the spot under the birches had been a shrine to him.

"She never loved me, though", he thought, as, entering the dim, cool woods, he slackened his pace. "If she'd really loved me, how I talked wouldn't a' made any difference."

Just then he came in sight of the birches and Margaret seated on the ground, her dark head leaning against a tree's silvery-brown trunk. A breeze stirred the branches, and the waving mosaic of light and shade that fell across her face showed that she had been crying. As if, in some vague way, aware of his presence, she lifted her eyes, and their gaze met.

It was but a moment that each looked into the other's face. Yet the fragment of time was long enough to enable each of them to glance ahead, seeing dimly what the future might hold for them estranged.

"Life devoted to an ideal might be noble and inspiring, but it would be desolate", Margaret said to herself. "Split infinitives, plural subjects with a single verb, even widow woman—why, they are nothing compared to a lonely life, and Jane Harris, smirking, because she has won him. I'll be proud of his real worth and think of the other as little as I can."

As for Jasper, he compressed his lips. "It don't matter. Or should I say doesn't? I'm blamed if I can tell, but maybe I can learn. It's sure I'll have to be nagged all my life, but seen' as how she will be the nagger, I'll make no fuss. And that college feller might as well know he hain't in this.

Neither of the lovers thought of the word compromise, but both were swayed by the idea the word represents. Margaret sprang to her feet, her face tender and wistful, while Jasper hurried forward to hold her in his arms.

GET RID OF SCROFULA HOW? TAKE S. S. S.

Fifty Years' Use Proves S. S. S. Will Relieve Stubborn Cases.

You have noticed the little festering pimples on the face and body—swelling of the glands—soreness in the legs and arm muscles. These are the symptoms of Scrofula. You may have some of these symptoms, possibly the taint of Scrofula infection But in either case, it is a dangerous condition. Your blood is infected, impure, and you can never hope to gain perfect health until the impurities are washed from the system. If you feel badly all the time, you must crave health. If you want to feel renewed spirits, the glow of perfect health bright eyes, clear skin, the knowledge that you are well, you can do so Cleanse your blood by taking S. S. S. For fifty years it has been the standard blood purifier. It relieves the trouble by renourishing the blood, renewing its strength, and stimulating the flow so that the blood regains its lost vitality, and throws off the poison Even long-standing cases respond. But you must use S. S. S. Take it for all blood infections. Get it at your druggist's today.

THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR Backache, Rheumatism and Dropsy.

Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased, these natural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There follow depression, aches and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rheumatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstinate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints, it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatica. This is the time to try "Anuric." Send 10c. for trial package.

During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system from meat eaten, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good time to take "Anuric," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for Kidney trouble and Backache. Neglected kidney trouble is responsible for many deaths, and Insurance Company examining doctors always test the water of an applicant before a policy will be issued. Have you ever set aside a bottle of water for twenty-four hours? A heavy sediment or settling sometimes indicates kidney trouble. The true nature and character of diseases, especially those of the kidneys and urinary organs, can often be determined by a careful chemical analysis and microscopical examination—this is done by expert chemists of the Medical Staff of the Invalids' Hotel. If you wish to know your condition send a sample of your water to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and describe your symptoms. It will be examined without any expense to you, and Doctor Pierce or his Staff of Assisting Physicians will inform you truthfully.

ALLEGED PLOTTERS MUST STAND TRIAL

NEW YORK, June 12.—Captain Hans Tauscher, husband of Madame Gadski, Wolf von Igel and others must go on trial for a plot to destroy the Welland canal.

Judge C. E. Wolverton in the United States district court today overruled a demurrer against the indictment.

Tauscher and others are indicted for having set on foot a "military enterprise" to destroy the Welland canal.

Herbert C. Smythe, attorney for the defendants, argued that since the men were armed only with pistols and carried a large quantity of dynamite that their action was not a military enterprise.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 12.—Improved weather and easier cables made the wheat market slightly bearish today. July was down ¾c at 103¼ and September down ½c at 105⅛, after lower openings.

Corn had a heavy undertone, with selling general. July lost half at the start and ruled fairly steady, later at 70½c, while September gained ¼c of its ⅜c opening loss and ruled around 69⅞c.

Oats was bearish with wheat. July was down ⅜c at 38⅞c and September down ⅛c at 38¼c.

Provisions were firm on strength at the yards.

FORMER TEAMMATE WITH MINNESOTANS DEFEATS NELSONS

Evenson Hurls for Houston and Local Team Finishes Game One Run Behind the Visitors

Al Evenson, manager of the W. B. U. Athletes, and formerly with the Nelsons, threw yesterday for Houston against the Nelsons and the Minnesotans won. Al went through the game, and allowed but six hits, striking out six men.

Ritter threw by far the best game of the day, whiffing thirteen men and allowing one less hit than did Evenson.

Errors figured prominently in the scoring of both teams. A. Peterson of Houston reached first base in the fourth inning on an error by Ritter and scored when a hit to right field by C. Anderson bounded over J. Fuchs' head. Anderson scored on errors by Satek and Meinert when the ball was returned from the field.

Beranek's pilfering ability resulted in the only tally for the Nelsons. He beat out a bunt in the sixth, stole second and third, and came home when Wheaton handled Woll's smash badly.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Pitcher Morton of the Indians, fanned thirteen Athletics, a season's record.

Morton fanned four in the sixth. Witt getting on because of the third strike being a wild pitch.

Reb. Russell held the haughty Washingtonians to four widely scattered hits.

The Senators shifted batting order was more helpless than ever. It's getting so now every time they lose a game, Clark Griffith changes the lineup.

Stellbauer of the Athletics, delivered as a pinch hitter with a hit and a run.

Manager Bill Donovan of the New York Yankees was the recipient of a bat bag by admirers at Detroit. However, it wouldn't have done any harm for them to have given a few bats along with the bag. All the Yanks seemed to have holes in their own bats the way they did not hit the ball.

DARIO RESTA WINS CHICAGO AUTO DERBY

CHICAGO, June 12.—Dario Resta today collected $13,000 which he won at yesterday's second annual Chicago auto derby, making the total amount of his winnings this year reach close to the $100,000 mark. His time for 300 miles was 3:02:31.64, an average of 98.7 miles an hour. Ralph De Palma, in his unlucky Mercedes, came in second, time 3:04:25.37. Joseph Christians in a Sunbeam was third and Eddie O'Donnell in a Duesenberg, fourth.

CLEVELAND HURLER WHIFFS THIRTEEN FOR YEAR'S RECORD

Morton Has Athletics Eating from Hand and Indians Cop; He Gets Four in One Inning

CLEVELAND, June 12—Cleveland defeated Philadelphia 7 to 2, winning in the first two innings, when it batted Meyers from the box.

Morton broke the strikeout record of the league for the season by striking out thirteen men, eleven of them being in the first six innings.

In the sixth inning he fanned four batters, Witt, Pick, Lajoie and McInnins, but the first named reached first by reason of his third strike being a wild pitch. The score: R H E

A HUMPHREY Automatic Water Heater Will Give You Abundant Hot Water At Little Cost

In planning for a hot water supply you must consider three things—1st, reliability; 2nd, convenience; 3rd, economy.

The Humphrey Automatic gas water heater is reliable—it is absolutely guaranteed to be perfectly constructed and to do all the things we claim. As for convenience, nothing in the world can equal the Humphrey Automatic for it gives you

Hot Water Instantly At The Turn of a Faucet

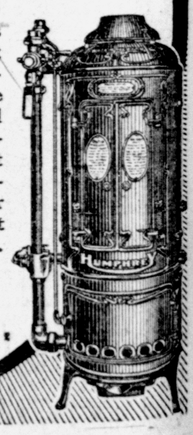
Just think of it! You get hot water just as easily as you now get cold water—merely turn a faucet, that's all. The Humphrey is so cleverly constructed that it works automatically. Cold water is made hot just as fast as it can run through the pipes. It keeps on flowing just as long as the faucet is open. When the faucet is closed fuel expense, except for the small pilot light, stops instantly. No cost worth mentioning except when you are actually drawing hot water. The Humphrey gives you the most convenient and most economical always-ready hot water supply in the world. Even if you use 50 gallons of hot water daily, the fuel cost will only be about 5c a day.



For small homes and bungalows where a convenient hot water supply is wanted for bath-room or kitchen, we recommend the Humphrey Guaranteed Instantaneous water heater. We'll be pleased to give you further information.
